On Friday December 21, Fox River was fortunate enough to be visited by Jennifer Pape and Hally Arzola, founders of Willow Creek Ranch, a therapeutic equine center located on Maple Road, a few miles west of the village of Rochester.

The non-profit center is intended to serve children and adults who face physical and cognitive challenges ranging from spinal injuries, autism and cerebral palsy to attention deficit disorder.

Pape and Arzola have come up with a motto for their center-"Where life reins, miracles happen." They hope to spread the word about the benefits of physically and mentally challenged people with horse riding therapy.

The photos shown here were taken during the presentation. A student from Fox River is seen demonstrating her therapy session with Dell, the horse she rides while at the center. Another Fox River student who volunteers at the ranch is shown in the background.
